Launch of the new UEFA National Associations Calendar
Trust – Communicate – Collaborate

Dear Sir or Madam,

The UEFA Calendar is the central planning tool for all important dates related to the European football season and institutional events of UEFA. Never has it been a more vital resource for UEFA - helping us to identify short and long-term solutions and facilitating the rescheduling of our flagship competitions in the wake of a global pandemic.

UEFA is now opening its operational calendar to its 55 member associations and, already, each national association has been busy uploading their own data into this centralised and extended version – now called the UEFA National Associations Calendar.

This widespread collaboration has resulted in an extensive football calendar for Europe that unites all key activities, including international and domestic football, showpiece matches, corporate events, executive committee meetings and key domestic activities, from across UEFA and its 55 member associations into one web application.

In 2019, the national associations in England, Greece, Norway and Romania joined a pilot programme and significantly helped to customise the shared calendar, working together to ensure it meets the varying needs of the European national associations as efficiently as possible.

Today, a further 150 calendar managers across Europe are working regularly to share their current football events information and planning. Not only will the new calendar provide leading insight into the activities of the 55 UEFA members, it will also strengthen the network within our football community and trigger new discussions around common interests. In addition, it is a very useful tool to support your domestic planning.

Such a resource is only as valuable as the quality and quantity of information contained therein. In this respect, we please ask your calendar managers to remain diligent and focused in their work to keep the information updated, accurate and trustworthy. Communication and collaboration are essential to maintain a high-quality product and can be used on a Europe-wide basis.

The UEFA National Associations Calendar now sits under the UEFA FAME platform and each person with a UEFA FAME account will have automatic access. You are welcome to follow this link to explore.

Should you have any further questions, please contact the UEFA National Associations Communications unit on the following email: NA.Communications@uefa.ch

This project has taken considerable time and effort and we take this opportunity to sincerely thank all the dedicated individuals and national associations involved so far.

Yours faithfully,

U E F A
